

COLUCCI, COLUCCI, MARCUS & FLAVIN, P.C. MILTON

Whether it's securing the year's largest verdict in Norfolk County, or victory in one of the Commonwealth's most notable criminal trials, 2013 has seen Colucci, Colucci, Marcus & Flavin reaffirm its reputation as the most dynamic law firm in Massachusetts. "Give the same case to 25 lawyers, and you'll get 25 different results," says managing partner Darin Colucci. And it would appear that the firm is regularly on the uppermost portion of that metric. "I'm proud to say that we recently eclipsed $100 million in collectible settlements and verdicts on behalf of our clients."

The firm remains best known for handling significant injury and wrongful death claims. "It's a real honor when surviving family members entrust you with a case involving a loved one's death," says head of litigation Dino Colucci. "Often, the family is seeking a measure of justice that can only come through the courts." And they routinely meet that challenge regardless of who the defendant may be. The firm has recently taken on the entire smoke detector manufacturing industry over a perceived defect that they claim has played a part in numerous deaths and hundreds of severe injuries. "We believe that we're on the right side of this critical safety issue, and remain committed to proving that the product is defective as designed," says Dino Colucci. "We're currently handling several of these cases in different states and are eager to investigate others." If history is any indicator, 2014 is sure to be noteworthy for victories in this arena as well.
